ADM. RADFORD WARNS

Soviet Guided Missile Progress Is Threat

Maps Nature Of Danger To Security

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States' chief strategy maker warns that Russian production of far-flying guided missiles is something that must be reckoned with soon.

Comment by Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, made in recent testimony before a Senate committee, serves to point up:

1. The determination of the United States to maintain, with a future arsenal of ocean-spanning nuclear rockets, the same war-detering factor which has existed in its fleet of conventional strategic bomber planes.

2. The fact that acquiring reliable information on missile development of other powers is one of the most difficult tasks in military technical intelligence.

Radford, appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee to support extension of the draft act, outlined the nature of the threats to American security. He observed that the rapidly increasing capabilities of Russian planes and atomic weapons already are "a matter of grave concern to this country." Then he added:

"The Soviet guided missile program, over the next few years, will bring increasingly longer range missiles into production."

The race of technicians in the United States and Russia for intercontinental ballistic missiles of reliable performance and adequate range is fully as intense as the contest in the production of strategic bombers. Sen. Symington (D-Mo.) and some others express fear that Russian rocketeers are ahead.

If the United States can establish a lead, it may be able to continue to deter Russia from trying war.

There is some grim thinking in the United States about an approaching time when "saturation bombing" of a nationwide scope would be possible. The long-range missiles will carry area-annihilating nuclear explosives. Their speed of delivery will render useless present day detection and interception. Until vast improvements can be made in radar, there will be no warning time for Civil Defense organizations to work at evacuation.

TEN AIRMEN DIE AS B29 HITS MOUNTAIN IN GERMANY

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—A U. S. Air Force Superfortress flew into a mountainside and exploded Friday night, killing all 10 crewmen aboard.

The four-engine B29 rammed into 2,100-foot Mt. Teckberg in fog and rain after completing a training instrument approach to Stuttgart airport.

Names of those killed were withheld, pending notification of kin.

Ike Outlines Two New Plans For Peaceful Use Of Atomic Energy

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower recommended today the United States put up money, nuclear materials and "know-how" for two new atoms-for-peace programs in other free nations. The programs, subject to approval by Congress, provide for helping such nations obtain atomic power and research reactors. The President pictured them as "the gateway to a broad avenue of world progress in the peaceful uses of atomic energy."

Never Connected With Red Party, Union Leader Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—John J. Mullen, political action director for the United CIO Steel Workers and former mayor of Clairton, Pa., swore to Senate investigators Saturday he never was associated with the Communist party in any way.

He also denied Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno asked him in February 1953, to drop bribery charges against two Clairton city councilmen and a coal operator. News stories at the time quoted Mullen to that effect.

The ruddy-faced, 50-year-old union leader testified before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee after Joseph D. Mazzei of Pittsburgh, a former FBI undercover informant, had described him as "a Communist party functionary."

Mullen, in whom David J. McDonald, president of the steelworkers union, has expressed complete confidence, was asked if he is now or ever had been a member of the Communist party.

"Absolutely not," he replied. At another point Mullen called Mazzei's testimony an "absolute lie."

Walter Hampden, Famed Actor, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Walter Hampden, 75, the famed actor of stage, screen and television, died Saturday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. He suffered a stroke Thursday.

The veteran actor, particularly noted for his Shakespearean roles, came to Hollywood from New York to take a role in a movie. He started work at MGM Studios Wednesday. Hampden was stricken in a taxicab the next day while on his way to the studio.

After the stroke he appeared to show some improvement but Saturday Dr. Gerald Blankfort said he was not responding to treatment.

Born Walter Hampden Dougherty in Brooklyn, the actor would have been 76 June 30. He began his Shakespearean roles in 1901 with a company touring Great Britain, later returning to the United States and a long career in the American theater.

Delivering the centennial commencement address at Pennsylvania State University, Eisenhower also voiced a new hope that Russia eventually will go along with his 1953 proposal to create an international atomic pool for peaceful purposes. The new appeal seemed to be directed over the heads of the Kremlin dictators to the people of Russia.

The President spoke to a crowd of about 20,000 persons on a misty rain fell in Beaver Stadium, and to a nationwide radio audience. Before his address he received an honorary doctor of laws degree, presented to him by his youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, Penn State president.

Protected from the drizzle by a canopy over the speakers' platform, the chief executive gave no hint of the cost of the two proposed programs. But he said "it will be small, indeed, when measured against the certain returns, tangible and intangible."

The President told about his plans this way: "We have developed two new programs that I shall submit to the Congress in the conviction that they reflect this spirit and intent of law and of the American people. "First: We propose to offer research reactors to the people of the free nations who can use them effectively for the acquisition of the skills and understanding essential to peaceful atomic progress."

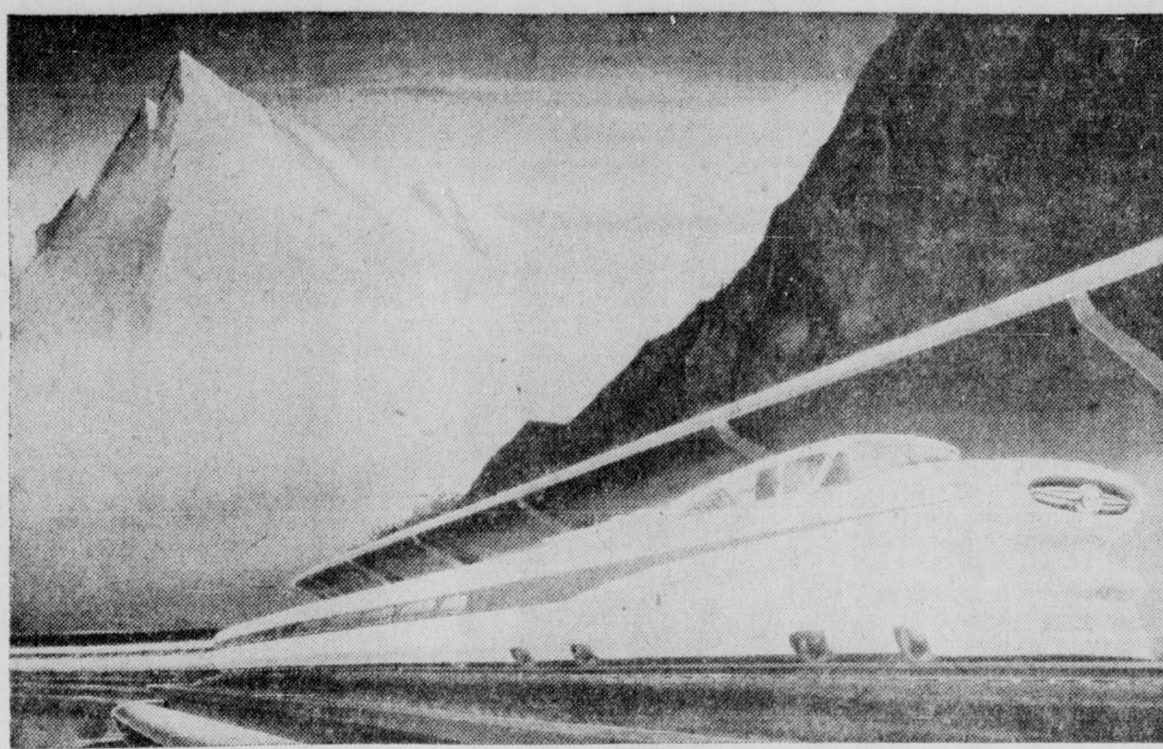

"The United States, in the spirit of partnership that moves us, will contribute half the cost. We also will furnish the acquiring nation the nuclear material needed to fuel the reactor."

"Second: Within prudent security considerations, we propose to make available to the peoples of such friendly nations as are prepared to invest their own funds in power reactors, access to and training in the technological processes of construction and operation for peaceful purposes."

In the case of the research reactor program, the President said the United States would support a voluntary grouping of the resources of several nations within a single region if the resources of individual countries of the area did not appear adequate to make effective use of a reactor.

MISS PRESS PHOTOGRAPHER COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—An 18-year-old Chicago brunette, Diane Danigellis, was named "Miss Press Photographer of 1955" Saturday.

Miss Danigellis is a speech student at Northwestern University and is an expert baton twirler.

GM BUILDING NEW TRAIN — General Motors has released this artist sketch of train GM is building at the request of a committee of railroad presidents, who are looking for ways to reduce an American railroad passenger deficit estimated at seven hundred million dollars per year. The lightweight low-slung train will have ten coaches and a one unit diesel locomotive powered by one twelve cylinder GM diesel engine with power enough to haul the train and 400 passengers at more than one hundred miles per hour.

UAW-GM NEGOTIATIONS

Reach Critical Stage; Time Is Running Out

DETROIT (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers said Saturday General Motors Corp. contract talks "have reached a critical stage" with less than 36 hours remaining before a Sunday midnight strike deadline for GM's 350,000 workers.

The union invited GM President Harlow Curtice to enter the talks personally, but Curtice promptly turned down the bid.

The union statement was the first public word that the negotiations were not running smoothly.

The UAW has set Sunday midnight as a final deadline, after granting a contract extension earlier in the week, for either a settlement or a walkout of GM workers in 119 plants from coast to coast.

'Brittle Fracture' Caused Crackup Of U. S. Ships

ROME (AP)—American and British experts have found out why more than 200 United States ships broke up or had hull cracks after the last war. "Brittle fracture" is the answer.

F. J. Feely, assistant director of the design division of the Esso Research and Engineering Co., Linden, N. J., and the University of Illinois solved the problem.

The United States responded to world War II demand with a multitude of ships. In cold seas these ships had troubles. More than 200 long hull cracks.

The hulls of American wartime ships were built of conventional steel—called A-7 Ship Steel. The University of Illinois 3 million pounds tensile testing machine was used for tests and it was found that American manganese content in steel and high manganese content. This would prevent more ships sinking.

Today the United States Steel Co. is running trial on a British steel which will function below zero without faulting.

WINES, DINES HIS ROBBERS

The two men left, said John Lyle Rundlett, an hour and a half later, with $83 and some clothing. He said the men entered his North Side apartment through an unlocked back door.

Flaming Car Kills 70

Racer Crashes Into Crowd At Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP)—At least 70 persons died and another 75 were seriously injured when a flaming sports car crashed in front of the grandstand in Le Mans' 24-hour auto race.

A speeding Mercedes crashed into another roaring car, then catapulted in flames over a dirt retaining wall into the crowd Saturday, and early Sunday the death toll was still rising.

Among the dead was the driver of the silver-coated Mercedes, Pierre Levegh of France.

Flames and flying debris took a heavy toll among the spectators. Pieces of hot metal cut bodies apart. M. Huet, chief police inspector who directed the removal of dead and dying, said he knew of two children who were decapitated. The dazed parents took the bodies away without informing police.

Huet said 65 persons died in hospitals or were dead on arrival "and I know of five others at least who are dead."

The number of dead was rising "as various injuries turn out to be fatal," he added.

John Fitch of Stamford, Conn., was the relief driver for Levegh in the crashed Mercedes but he was not in the car at the time of the crash.

A high-ranking police officer, his arms bloody to the elbow, said an hour after the crash while bodies were still being dragged from the crowd: "I know 40 are dead. The total will go to 50, at least. Many of the injured were so mutilated they cannot live. We will never know the full cost of this. I fought through the war and never did I see such carnage."

The governor of Sarthe Department (county), Pierre Prouille, confirmed that the death toll had reached 30. He added, "More than 50 others were seriously injured."

An Associated Press reporter counted 17 bodies as they were brought from the death scene at the main grandstand area just short of where the race is to finish at 4 p.m. Sunday.

The accident occurred when three cars roared abreast in front of the stands. A crowd of about 250,000 spectators, many of them 20 to 30 deep along the outside rail behind the protecting wall watched in horror as two of the cars collided with a splintering crash.

The sleek racers were streaking along at about 125 miles per hour. A British Austin-Healey driven by the Briton, Lance Macklin, veered, scraping and smashing along the cement wall in front of the pits. Several persons were injured on that side of the track, among them Macklin.

The second car, the Mercedes, brushed against the pit wall, bounced off and headed at a right angle across the track, catapulting over a six-foot dirt wall, over a picket fence and plunging in a flaming, smoking dive straight into the massed crowd of screaming people.

More than a dozen ambulances, scores of police officers, security men, doctors, nurses and first aid workers worked nearly two hours to remove the dead and injured. Some of the bodies were piled two to a stretcher, as they were brought out. A priest moved among the injured, praying, making the sign of the cross and occasionally lifting the bloody paper from each face to see if the dead was man or woman.

Bodies and the injured were taken to hospitals in Le Mans, a city of 90,000 in western France, and to nearby towns. They were carried in ambulances and on farm trucks. A four-foot pile of bloody clothing, shoes and newspapers remained as a monument to the horror.

The third car, not identified in the excitement of the crash, whizzed on.

British Factories, Offices Still Run Despite Strikes

LONDON (AP)—The British people appeared Saturday to be holding out successfully against industrial chaos threatened by the two-week national rail strike.

Reports from all over the country showed that factory and office wheels have been kept turning at almost full speed. Workers and business executives—hitchhiking, and jamming aboard emergency trucks and trains run by skeleton crews—are getting to the job and home again, usually on time.

More threatening than the rail strike is the walkout in an inter-union squabble of 20,000 stevedores upon which this island kingdom's very life depends.

Railroad union chiefs and government negotiators conferred urgently for the third straight day. Despite personal intervention of Labor Minister Walter Monckton, they failed to find a formula for ending the strike.

George Calls For Japan, Red China Trade Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) Saturday called for greatly expanded trade between Japan and Red China. He said this is the only way to insure a prosperous Japan and at the same time avoid "cut-throat competition" between the United States and Japan.

"Japan ought to be allowed, and should not be discouraged from, reopening their markets in the great trading area of China," George said. He is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He said that Chinese Nationalist blockades of Red China ports across the Formosa Strait would prevent Japan from using those entry points unless some arrangement could be made with Chiang Kai-Shek. This is regarded as impossible now.

But George said the Nationalists have no power to prevent entry of Japanese goods to northern China ports. Only goods with a strict military application should continue to be embargoed, George said.

Lev Can't Remember Spending $213,924 Probers Hear As Senate Hearing Ends

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) Saturday closed an investigation of alleged graft in military uniform purchases with a blast that Chicago hat maker Harry Lev "has failed" to disprove charges he paid $50,000 in bribes to a suspended Air Force captain.

Lev, meanwhile insisted he couldn't remember at all how he spent $213,924 in cash withdrawals from his Chicago banks in 1952 and 1953.

The investigators also developed that Lev, who made a fortune on government contracts, is in trouble with federal income tax agents.

To the end, after five days of testimony varying from stony to hilarious, Lev declared none of his money found its way into bribes, blackmail or favoritism for government purchasing officials.

Stories of such deals, which Sen. Bender (R-Ohio) called "Stinky", were reported repeatedly in the Senate Investigations subcommittee hearings which began May 18.

Lev, a one-time poor refugee from Pinsk, Poland, who says he can neither read nor write English, promised the subcommittee a statement later about the $213,924. "I don't remember, but I'm going to," he insisted, puffing soberly on a cigar. He said he couldn't recall now what he did with even $5 of the sum.

Leon M. Levy of Brooklyn, a rival manufacturer, told the subcommittee earlier he heard that Lev paid $50,000 in bribes to Air Force Capt. Raymond Wool, who once headed military purchasing offices in New York. Wool denied this but now faces court-martial on charges he accepted favors from military contractors "for services rendered."

McClellan, subcommittee chairman, brought out that Lev claimed $50,000 in "entertainment and promotional expenses" on his 1952 income tax return. He asked if Lev had any documents to back up the claim.

"I haven't," Lev replied. Theodore C. Weinberg, Lev's income tax adviser, told the subcommittee revenue agents already have challenged Lev's tax deductions "from the year 1950 down."

Carmine Bellino, a subcommittee auditor and former assistant to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, testified he found "no records available" to explain what Lev did with $125,859 in 1952 and $88,065 in 1953, withdrawn in cash from various bank accounts. He added that altogether $1,403,245 in cash passed through Lev's hands in those years.

Under hammering questions as to what he did with the $213,924 in cash withdrawals, Lev said "I have not kept any records. I (will) bring it out of my head in a statement." He said he would furnish later.

Friendly "Lost Dog" Begs For Home In South Jacksonville

By HOWARD T. HOFSTEATER
Imagine for a moment that you've been struck all of a sudden with amnesia. You've forgotten all the things that have vital meanings to yourself. You suddenly find yourself wandering around in a puzzled fashion in a strange world—peculiarly familiar, yet not yours. Beaten paths no longer exist; your own name is on the tip of your tongue, but it escapes you tantalizingly, and there is no one to hail you by the name that might snap you back into old memory patterns. You keep on wandering around, wondering what has happened to you. Pangs of hunger attack your midriff, and there's nothing you can do about it unless you happen upon something more or less edible by sheer luck. The sun sinks down beyond the horizon, and the black shadows of night swoop down upon you, and you don't know where to go. You're a lost dog.

Exactly! A lost dog! There is a lost, strayed or abandoned dog forlornly hanging around in the neighborhood of Dewey Drive, facing the South Jacksonville School, right next to the imitation-brick-facaded Village Hall of South Jacksonville. The dog does not know that he is in deadly peril of being picked up by the anti-dog village authorities and swiftly put to death unless ransomed, either by his rightful owner or some kind-hearted fellow on the lookout for a really nice dog to grace his hearthstone. The period of grace for the arrested dog is but two days. If he is not rescued from the execution block then he is "conveniently disposed of."

Description
This lost dog is a shaggy black, around 25-30 pounds in weight, with a thin collar of white hair, and a white streak down his nose. His paws are white flecked with black. The black hair on his coat is rather curly. Either he is still a puppy, however big he is, or his self-confidence has been so sadly disturbed that the fully mature and jealous dogs of Dewey Drive have no difficulty in ejecting Lost Dog from their respective dogmains. Lost Dog is no match for them.

Lost Dog is remarkably gentle and affectionate, especially to children. All the children on Dewey Drive know him and like to have him nuzzle them.

The other night when it was threatening to rain, Lost Dog was seen trying to crawl into the corrugated iron culvert under the alley joining Dewey Drive and West Greenwood. Fortunately, it was just a little too small, or he might have drowned if he could not back out of there.

Lost Dog wants to be found and restored to his home. The next best thing he is praying for is a new home where he can pour out all the love that wells up in his doggy heart.

Dr. Henry S. Leiper To Be Congregational Conference Speaker

Internationally known Congregational Christian churchman and ecumenical leader, Dr. Henry S. Leiper of New York City, minister and executive secretary of the Missionary Council of Congregational Christian Churches, will speak at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Congregational Christian Conference on the Illinois College campus. The general public is invited.

In case of rain, the conference session will be held in the College Memorial Gymnasium. Widely acquainted in interdenominational circles, Dr. Leiper was for 22 years Associate General Secretary of the World Council of Churches in which capacity as a Christian "Ambassador-at-large" he travelled thousands of miles annually, much of the time by air. He is Honorary Secretary of the American Friends of the World Council of Churches.

DR. HENRY S. LEIPER

One of the guiding forces in the ecumenical consultations which preceded the setup of the World Council of Churches and from its provisional beginning on its General Secretariat, Dr. Leiper also was Ecumenical Secretary and Consultant to what is now the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

For a quarter century a world traveller who practically has "commuted" between the U.S.A. and Europe—having made his 73rd crossing last June—Dr. Leiper visited recently in Australia, New Zealand, Malaya, and India at the invitation of church and government leaders. He has travelled extensively in the Orient.

With contacts including not only church and political leaders, but the common people in some 37 lands, Dr. Leiper, who possesses a genius for creating warm friendships with people of all races, countries, religious persuasions and economic classes, captivates his audiences by the humanness of his message.

In Mission Movement

Dr. Leiper knows the missionary movement from both the home point of view and the foreign angle. He was editorial secretary of the Congregational Commission on Missions, the organization which preceded the present Missions Council, and for five years was a missionary of the American Board of Foreign Missions in China.

It was his interest in interchurch aid, aroused by work with the China International Relief Commission in 1918-1922, which made him one of the leaders in setting up the interdenominational overseas relief program of the Protestant Churches during World War II. He was a founder of the churches' work for refugees. Recently, at the request of the Indian Government, he served on a commission to study famine conditions in that land.

During World War I, Dr. Leiper was with the Army Y. M. C. A. in Siberia, and saw the Russian Revolution developing while later he witnessed the beginnings of Japanese militarism and German Hitlerism in those lands.

The Missions Council of Congregational Christian Churches, of which Dr. Leiper is now the leader, is the official joint body of these churches for educating the constituency in matters of home and foreign missions and securing their support. The Missions Council includes the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, Boston, Massachusetts; The Board of Home Missions, and the Council for Social Action, New York City.

Sweikert, Power said, will be one of three celebrities who will take part in the "Oil Can Trophy" race that has become a traditional pre-derby feature of the Akron, Ohio event. Sharon Ludwig Bride Of William J. Carls

Nuptial vows were exchanged between Miss Sharon Francis Ludwig and William T. Carls, Jr. in a ceremony performed at three o'clock Saturday afternoon, June fourth at the Church of Our Saviour. The double ring service was conducted by the Reverend Father Terrance Tracey in the presence of friends and relatives of the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Ludwig, 281 Pinley street. Mr. Carls is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Carls, Sr. of Arenzville route two.

White glads, white daisies and stock in altar vases decorated the chancel of the church. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Alta Elsch played as the processional Bach's "Arioso" followed with "Pontius Angelico" by Bizet. Her recessional was "Andante Religioso," by Thome.

The bride had three attendants. Her matron of honor was Mrs. Ronald Haemmerle of St. Louis. Miss Joan Carls, Arenzville, sister of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid and Miss Marilyn Carls, another sister of the bridegroom, was the junior bridesmaid. Little Susan Lovekamp, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a ballerina length gown of imported Swiss organdy with all over embroidery. The bodice had a boat shaped neckline in sheer net above a scalloped embroidered border giving an off-shoulder effect and extending over shoulders and forming short shirred sleeves. The very bouffant skirt was over multiple sheer underskirts, the hemline finished in the elaborate embroidered scallop motif used at the bodice.

Short mitts matched the material of her gown and she carried an embroidered organdy covered fan with a cluster of lily-of-the-valley tied in satin ribbon. Her semi long veil of nylon tulle, with blusher, was attached to a small Queen's crown of imported organdy studded with seed pearls.

The bride's only jewel accessories were pearl earrings she had received when she served as a bridesmaid for Mrs. Haemmerle, her matron of honor who was Jeanne Blum before her marriage.

After Father Tracey had accepted the couple's vows the bride placed a floral tribute of red roses at the altar of the Blessed Virgin. The attendants wore ballerina length dresses of all over embroidery of pastel blue on white organdy over pastel blue taffeta underskirts. The bodices of the dresses were low fitted with detail embroidered trim matching in design at both front and back. The skirts were very full with the same emphasis in embroidery used in a double panel at the front from waist to hemline. Each wore a shirred headband to which were attached dainty nose veils in blue. The attendants carried blue lace covered fans with blue daisies. The matron's flowers having distinction of being blue and white.

The little flower girl wore a short blue and white organdy embroidered dress with a blue daisy trimmed headband.

Ronald Haemmerle of St. Louis served the bridegroom as best man. Marvin Schilling, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. Ushers were Merle Lovekamp and David Carls, cousins of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Ludwig wore for her daughter's wedding a wedgewood blue polished cotton dress embroidered in various shades of blue. Her accessories were navy and her hat of white straw. New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—With hard driving persistence, the stock market this week climbed repeatedly to new record high levels.

The market has been heading upward for nearly a month following a fall that started a consolidating reaction.

This week it erased the last of the old losses and pushed through to new peak marks as registered by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks.

The average eclipsed the old April 26 high of Monday and then kept on climbing for two more days to new tops. After a one-day hesitation for profit-taking, it resumed its climb and closed the week at a new high mark of $169.20.

A good boost was given to buying sentiment with the settlement between Ford and the United Auto Workers. And Commerce Secretary Weeks said it was possible that 1955 would be the best business year the nation ever had seen.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were Webb & Knapp up 1/4 at 24, on volume of 276,300 shares; Great Sweet Grass Oils up 13-16 at 3 5-16; Jupiter Oil up 3/4 at 2 1/4; Ford Motor Ltd. up 11-16 at 8 1/4; and Imperial Chemical Industries off 3-16 at 7 3/4.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were Sperry Rand Corp. "when issued" up 1/4 at 27 1/4 on 374,900 shares; U. S. Steel up 4 at 48 1/4; Kaiser Aluminum up 6 at 37; Pennsylvania Railroad up 1/4 at 49 1/4; and Republic Steel up 1 1/2 at 45 1/4.

CHICAGO (AP)—Hogs and lambs were in strong demand most of the week but cattle developed mixed trends.

Barrows and gilts gained 75 cents to $1.00 during the period and sows were up 50 to 75 cents. The best butcher weight hogs nosed up to $20.40. Both that price and the average estimated at $19.00 were highest since last September.

Light steers and yearlings were steady to 50 cents higher but grade and above were only steady and lower grades were as much as 50 cents off. Heifers ranged from 25 cents lower on better grades to 50 cents higher on poorer quality.

Cows added 25 to 50 cents during the week, bulls were steady to 50 cents up and vealers were $1.00 better. Cattle supplies were 17 per cent greater than the week before, which included a holiday, but about even with a year ago.

Lambs jumped $1.00 to $1.50 a hundred pounds but aged sheep only held mainly steady. Spring lambs dominated the market but supplies were lightest since October except for the Memorial Day week just preceding.

Both native and fed California spring lambs sold at the week's peak price of $25.50.

WHEAT FUTURES SHOW EFFECT OF RAINY WEATHER

CHICAGO (AP)—Rain hovered over the futures market on the Board of Trade this week.

In one direction the downpour gave weather's last crushing blows to the winter wheat crop in Oklahoma and parts of nearby states. It was too late to help the drought-ridden areas.

And where early harvesting had already started the muddy and flooded fields retarded combining and truck movement.

Elsewhere the prolonged rainy spell was considered beneficial to the spring wheat crop and to those corn and soybeans areas where planting had been completed.

The upshot was that nearby wheat contracts gained and distant deliveries which represent the spring crop lagged.

The week finished with wheat 3/4 cent higher to 1/2 lower than a week earlier, corn was unchanged to two cents higher, oats were 1/4-1 1/2 cents lower. Soybeans ranged from 1/4 cents to 1/2 lower and lard was 2 to 2 1/2 cents higher.

Corn and soybeans had some day-to-day effects from the rain, but other influences were stronger in the final summation. Corn was benefited by some exports and by smaller amounts going into the government loan, indicating more was being currently consumed.

The department of agriculture reported that farmers had placed 215,700,000 bushels of 1954 crop corn under government loan up to May 15. A year earlier the total had reached 46,300,000 bushels.

July soybean carried the most strength, nurtured by a vigorous demand from refiners for soybean oil which sent the cash product to highs for the year. Most distant bean contracts eased as the new crop was reported to be showing steady improvement.

Virginia Church School Offers Bible Training

VIRGINIA, Ill.—The Community Vacation Bible School opened last week with two departments. The junior department, meeting in the Presbyterian church, has as workers Mr. and Mrs. Shaw Terwilliger, Mrs. Wilbur Allen and Mary Ellen Lang. The primary department, holding sessions in the Methodist church, has as workers Carol Armstrong, Mrs. Charles Burnham, Mrs. Floyd Brewer, Mrs. Orville French, Mary Fisher, Rea Black, Marcia McGehee and Judy Terwilliger. Rev. Wilbur Allen is the dean of the school this year.

The school has been operated for several years by the Virginia Ministerial Alliance. The study material being used is Bible centered and is interdenominational. The offerings being received as a part of the training program of the school will be sent to the Illinois Council of Churches to be used for missionary work among migrant workers.

Club Has Program
At the regular monthly meeting of the Walnut Grove Household Science club at the country home of Mrs. Clifford Sudbrink, Wednesday, June 8, about thirty members and two guests were present. The roll call, furnished by the members of the flower committee, preceded the business meeting, which was conducted by the president, Mrs. James R. Fox. In answer to the roll call, quite a variety of flowers were found in the verbal flower garden as each member was asked to give the name of a flower beginning with one of the initials in her name. In some instances the flower was already in her name.

For the program, a paper, "Flower Arrangement," was given by Mrs. James R. Fox, who reviewed the book, "Flower Arrangement for the Home," by Taber & Kistner. Mrs. Fox started her talk by telling the different shapes of floral arrangements and the relation of height as to containers. The members were informed as to types and texture of flowers and vases and how to use them with different styles of table settings. She closed her talk by showing a color chart and the coordination of colors, not only of flowers, but containers as well.

Mrs. Fox illustrated the main points with colored chalk illustrations throughout and due to her artistic ability, the members enjoyed a rare treat.

A contest, "Name the Baby," closed the program. Members brought their baby pictures and all joined in trying to identify them. Because of a tie in guessing them correctly, Mrs. George Parlier and Mrs. Byron Edwards drew numbers for the prize, with Mrs. Edwards getting the lucky number.

The meeting closed with the serving of a light refreshment by the hostess and her assistant, Mrs. Warren Sudbrink.

Roodhouse Plans Little White House Conference June 16

ROODHOUSE—On May 13, Gov. Straton filed a proclamation which designates the period June 6 through June 17 as a time for the holding of Little White House Conferences on education throughout Illinois. These are explained as meetings at which representative citizens and of education study their educational problems at all levels and determine what action should be taken. These conferences on education will provide an opportunity for the citizens of Illinois to decide on the proposed solutions for educational problems which are calling for attention.

Supt. Chas. C. Barlow has been asked by County Supt. G. W. Lowe to act as local chairman in organizing the Little White House Conference in the Roodhouse district. In compliance with the governor's proclamation Supt. Barlow is calling a meeting at the school on Thursday, June 16 at 7:45 o'clock p.m. to discuss the following questions:

1. "What Should Our Schools Accomplish?"
2. "In What Ways Can We Organize Our School Systems More Efficiently?"
3. "What Are Our School Building Needs?"
4. "How Can We Get Enough Good Teachers and Keep them?"
5. "How Can We Finance Our Schools, Build and Operate Them?"
6. "How Can We Obtain a Continuing Public Interest in Education?"

A report of the issues discussed and the suggestions and recommendations made at this meeting will be forwarded to County Supt. Lowe and from there to the state superintendent and finally to the White House for discussion before the National Committee Nov. 28 to Dec. 1, 1955.

All those interested in schools should attend the meeting June 16 and take part in this important White House Conference.

CARS, CARS, CARS BEWILDER SCOTS

The fact that there are so many cars in America and the cars are so large, and "they're all on the wrong side of the road," continues to amaze a Scot couple visiting the states for the first time.

"I can't imagine where all the cars come from or where they are going," exclaimed Mrs. W. G. Taylor of Ardrossan, Ayrshire county, Scotland.

Her husband agreed, and added that it takes a lot of gasoline to get our cars over the road. In Scotland "petrol" is now selling for two shillings, four pence, which adds up to 68c a gallon in American currency. So Scots buy little cars to ease the petrol bill.

Taylor is especially interested in motor fuels, since he retired last year after 46 years with the Shell Oil company, which has a refinery at Ardrossan, a town of 15,000.

"During the war, the last one I mean, we put the whole refinery underground. Sheep were grazing above us. We worked day and night furnishing gasoline for the big allied airbase located nearby."

Taylor, a big bulk of a man who measured just right for the Scots Guard during World War I, is mighty proud of the lapel pin given to him upon his retirement. It is of gold, with five diamonds.

"Only one in the United Kingdom," he announced with an obvious trace of pride.

Mrs. Taylor, too, is mighty happy with her visit to America and her reunion with her sister, Mrs. Mary McManus, 731 S. West street.

"There were six of us girls. Mary came to America 48 years ago and the rest of us stayed in Scotland. And we are all still alive. Don't you think that is pretty good?" Mrs. Taylor queried.

Mrs. McManus visited her relatives in Scotland in 1952 and again last year. The reunited trio are

Last week Taylor saw his first ear of corn and decided it looked like "mighty good feed for horses and cattle." The McManus clan gathered to greet their relatives from the homeland and popcorn was served. This was also new to the visitors.

"And very good it is, too," declared Mrs. Taylor, "if you put plenty of sugar on it." But she isn't sold on sweet potatoes and seriously doubts if pie and cake for dessert ever will take the place of a good solid pudding.

The Taylors have been enjoying our cold, damp weather. They said they had heard that it got very hot in Illinois during the summer months.

They expect to stay around until mid-August. So all the relatives have to say about the weather is "just hang around for a while."

Gambling Operator, 2 'Victims' Fined

Two fugitives from a poker game and a man they named as operator were fined Saturday morning in police magistrate court after they switched their pleas from innocent to guilty.

Charges of gambling were filed against two men who "complained" they lost money in a game, while the third was brought in by officers.

The investigation and subsequent fines started at 7:45 a.m. when Bob Stout, 504 Hardin avenue, and Lowell LaBranch of Manchester showed up at the police station and reported they were victimized in a game of chance at the home of John Divers, in Broadway Alley, north of the city hall.

Stout told police he dropped $75 at Divers' place; LaBranch said he lost $45.

Sgt. Francis Willner issued tickets against both men, and a pickup order was given for Divers, who was arrested by Lt. Howard Stout and Patrolman Cloyd Wilson. The three defendants were locked up.

Bond of each man was set at $1,000 by Police Magistrate William Messersmith, when they announced their pleas of innocent. Later in the morning they changed their pleas.

Divers was fined $200 and costs. Bob Stout was fined $25 and costs, and LaBranch also was assessed the same amount on the gambling complaint. LaBranch also was fined $10 on a charge of drunkenness.

Racer Crashes Into Crowd At Le Mans

zed by without getting touched. It was in a tight formation with the two cracked up cars but escaped entanglement.

The race is the most famous for sports cars and important to automobile car makers.

It is run over a closed asphalt highway circuit of 13.492 kilometers (8 miles 675 yards). The cars, little and big, are piloted by pairs of drivers relieving one another.

After five hours another Mercedes driven by world champion Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina and Stirling Moss of England was in the lead. Two laps behind was a Jaguar driven by Mike Hawthorn of England. In third place was a Ferrari piloted by Umberto Maglioli and Phil Hill of the United States.

While the dead and injured were being carried from the scene, the race continued, the roars of the motors mingling with the screams of the injured and the dying.

Officials at first flagged the cars to reduce speed, but shortly afterward, since the roadway itself was clear, they signalled the drivers they could resume top speeds.

Shortly after the big crash, a British M. G. driven by R. W. Jacobs of Britain, rolled over twice and caught fire at a curve. The driver quickly scrambled from the car and suffered only minor contusions.

Going Away? Library Displays Travel Books

Over one-third of the Americans will spend their vacations traveling this year, according to a recent survey. Jacksonville's citizens who are a part of this quota can be well informed travelers by consulting the collection of new books about places near and far on display in the reading room of the Public Library.

Camping provides an enjoyable and economical vacation especially for families. "The Handbook of Trail Campcraft," published by the Y.M.C.A., contains complete instructions for outdoor living and includes everything from first aid to menus and recipes. Other helps for camping and auto travel are Wells' "Handbook of Auto Camping and Motorist's Guide to Public Campgrounds," and "Your Rand McNally Vacation Guide."

The Federal Writers' Program has printed many guides to individual states and vacation areas of the U. S. and the latest one received is about "Georgia." Each one has suggested tours as well as historical backgrounds.

"Around the U.S.A. in 1000 Pictures," by Runyon, attempts to portray something of the spirit of all the states that one might see if a long enough vacation could be planned.

Other picture books of use in arranging trips or renewing memories of places visited are "The Catholic Shrines in the U. S. and

Girl Scouts Enthused Despite Chilly Camp Weather

Mary Lee Spreen June Bride

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD W. BRENNAN
Miss Mary Lee Spreen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Spreen, 1834 Cedar street, became the bride of Richard W. Brennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brennan, 504 Hardin avenue in an impressive ceremony performed at one o'clock Wednesday, June first, at the Rectory of Our Saviour's church.

Rev. Father John Spreen, cousin of the bride, united the couple in the presence of close friends and members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Howard Reynolds, Jr., sister of the bride and Robert Sassenberger, attended the couple.

The bride wore a ballerina length gown of lace over taffeta with a soft rounded off-shoulder neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her fingertip veil was of nylon illusion and held in place with a band of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white daisies.

When the newlyweds left for a honeymoon the bride was wearing a pearl gray summer suit with lavender color accessories and the white daisy corsage from her wedding bouquet. Upon their return the couple took up residence at 751 Hardin avenue.

Mrs. Brennan graduated from the Jacksonville high school and prior to her marriage was a registered medical secretary employed by Dr. Robert R. Hartman. She is a member of the Delta Theta Tau sorority. Mr. Brennan attended the local schools and is engaged in the heating and sheet metal business in Jacksonville.

A typical morning scene at Camp Shagbark on Lake Jacksonville is pictured above with the 92 girls standing at attention as the flag is raised in ceremony accompanied by the bugler playing To the Colors. The smaller view is of the pup tents pitched by the water for the three day camping spree.

These girls discovered that it's the "outing" in Scouting that's so much fun. They know why bacon and eggs taste so much better when cooked over an open fire and why sleeping under the stars is so exciting.

The Girl Scouts of the Illinois Prairie Council with their troop and council leaders had a happy time learning to enjoy and appreciate outdoor life and the activities of a well-planned camp program. They learned too, to deal with the elements in the form of rain and chilly winds which prevailed throughout the period. Rain dampened only the first afternoon's setting-up activities and managed to hold off for the remainder of the period. The young ladies, however, did have to contend with the chilling gusts for most of the camp period. This made them appreciate their newly discovered skills of fire-making and tent pitching as well as the making of a warm bed roll.

Girls From Four Counties

Warm friendships were also a part of the values the Scouts acquired as they camped with girls from four counties—Morgan, Cass, Scott and Greene. Handicraft, nature study, weather, knot-tying, compass and other scouting skills were a part of the instruction periods. Every camper had a chance to participate in and practice fire-building and cooking since all meals were cooked out-of-doors. Most memories will probably stem from the flag ceremonies and the camp fire programs. Here the girls learned the thrill of standing at attention and giving the Girl Scout salute while the bugler played "To the Colors" or "Retreat" as their country's flag was raised or lowered. The campfire provided the usual fun of singing rousing songs, under the direction of Mimi Goodey, and performing stunts and story-telling.

Much of the success of the camp was due to the excellent planning and leadership of camp director, Miss Mary Culver of Madison, Wis. Miss Culver is a physical education teacher in the Greenfield public schools and an alumnus of MacMurray College. She has had several years of camp experience and leadership training at the Girl Scout sponsored camp of the Madison Council held at Hayward, Wis. Additional leadership was furnished by the two Senior Scout Troops No. 45 of Jacksonville and No. 25 of Greenfield, who served as program aides. Adult troop leaders who also provided valuable assistance were Sandy Carter and Rosella Holmes.

To Girls State

Miss Joyce Perry has been chosen by the American Legion Auxiliary of Chapin as its representative to attend Illinois Girls State in Jacksonville from June 21 to 29.

Miss Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Perry of Chapin route 1, will be a senior at Chapin High school next fall.

I.C. Play Triumph For Cast And Miss Frees

By WILLIAM L. DeFRATES
Octavia K. Frees, Professor of speech and dramatic art at Illinois College since 1945, wove her special brand of magic for the last time Friday evening as director of the Hilltop Players with a sparkling production of "The Would-Be Gentleman" by Moliere. Miss Frees has resigned her position on the Illinois College faculty and will resume her career in her home state of New York.

Rain washed out the scheduled performance of Moliere's comedy on the Ames Woodland Stage, and it was 9:45 before stage equipment could be made ready in the I.C. gym.

The audience was rewarded with a sharp and colorful comedy of manners in a grand style. Director Frees had already demonstrated her talent in this vein with "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "The School for Scandal," these being two of the some 21 Hilltop plays she has directed since joining the I.C. faculty; so Moliere was to her more a temptation than a challenge.

"The Would-Be Gentleman" was first performed in 1670 and was another of the author's comical attacks against comical pretensions. To laugh at himself and his fellow-men was Moliere's primary concern, and as a result his plots were hurried and fuzzy.

The behaviour of Miss Frees' players and technicians was superb. Harriet Longman made a perfectly fat little bourgeois who kept in character from beginning to end, no small trick in itself. Her facial expressions and funny walk gave her, perhaps, a more sympathetic role than Moliere intended; still, she was ridiculous enough.

The large cast was a clever blending of witicism and characterization. Especially outstanding were Wilma Dobbs as Nicola, Gary Gengel as the fencing master and George Reilly as Cleonte. Others in the cast were Henry Kruse, Jack Bostic, Davey Dunn, M. Walker, Doris Schmiedl, Richard Schmidt, Bud Waton, Karen Meyers, Carol Shaffner, Mary Reusche, Zoe Kilver, Miriam Gibson and Frances Zolner.

Miss Frees, whose business is making amateurs behave like professionals and painted canvas look like a palace or a pigsty, will be greatly missed both for the artistic beauty which she brought to local stages and the warm friendship which many townspeople and students shared with her. At the close of the play, the Hilltop Players presented her a proclamation stating these thoughts, and the audience gave her a standing ovation.

Olympic Meeting Gets Under Way; Will Discuss Site

PARIS (AP)—The largest and possibly one of the most fateful of 50 sessions of the International Olympic Committee—IOC—opens at the Sorbonne Monday. Decisions reached could revolutionize sports.

Outwardly, the big decisions in the week long meeting are where the 1960 winter and summer Olympic games will be held.

But those decisions are only part of the work and they could prove to be far less important than what the IOC decides to do about amateurs in sports, about professional athletes, scholarships and armed service athletes.

Avery Brundage, Chicago hotelman who is president of the IOC, will discuss his visit to Australia last month when he looked into preparations for the 1956 games in Melbourne.

Another probability for discussion will be Brundage's findings after a lengthy tour of Russia last year. Brundage visited sports installations and looked into claims that state employed "amateurs" are on many Russian sports teams and groups.

Sixty IOC members from 42 countries—easily a record turnout—are expected in Paris by late Sunday afternoon.

Pirates Fold In 9th; Gene Conley Wins 8th As Mathews Gets 12th

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Ed Mathews, Billy Bruton and Johnny Logan each smacked home runs Saturday to power Milwaukee to a 7-4 win over the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates, enabling Gene Conley to notch his eighth victory of the season after a shaky start.

With the score knotted at 4-4 in the ninth, Bruton connected for his sixth, four-bagger, driving Del Crandall across in front of him. Logan then teed off for his ninth home run.

Mathews' blow, his 12th so far this year, came in the fourth stanza after the Pirates had assumed a 4-0 lead in the initial frame.

Conley shut out Pittsburgh after their big first inning. He struck out six and issued five walks.

Conley, who stands 6 feet 8, limited the Pirates to six safeties after the first inning, and gave up only eight all the way. The 24-year-old righthander has three losses on his record to date.

Bobby Friend, who went the distance for the Pirates, was charged with his second setback against three wins.

Capitalizing on two Pirate errors, Milwaukee used singles by Crandall, Bruton and Hank Aaron to tally three unearned runs in the fifth and deadlock the contest at 4-4.

The Pirates had jumped off to a four-run bulge in the first frame on three walks, an error, two sacrifice flies, Jerry Lynch's single and

Ed Furgol Sharp; Four Strokes Back Of Peter Thompson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Australia's Peter Thompson, with his second three under par 67 in three days, took the lead at the three-quarter mark of the $150,000 International Golf Tournament Saturday.

But the United States tandem of Chick Harbert and Ed Furgol lengthened its lead in the team play for the Canadian Cup, which is held concurrently with the individual event as part of the world's richest golf tournament.

Harbert, with an even par 70, tied with Florio Van Donck of Belgium for second place in the individual tournament with identical 54-hole cards of 209, a stroke behind Thompson's 208.

Furgol, the U.S. Open champion, turned in his best round of the tournament over the rain-soaked Columbia Country Club fairways. He was in at one under par 69, putting him at 212, four strokes behind Thompson.

Australia, the defending champion represented by Thompson and Kel Nagle, was in second place in team play with a total of 424 strokes. The United States had 421.

Very much in the running were Belgium with 426, Argentina and Scotland, each with 427, and Ireland with 428.

Brooklyn Edges Cubs; Makes 6th In Row For Walter Alson's Bums

BROOKLYN (AP)—Brooklyn's runaway Dodgers opened up a 101 game lead in the National League race Saturday with a 4-3 victory over Chicago on Duke Snider's seventh inning home run — the club's fourth of the day. It was the Dodgers' sixth straight triumph and their 12th in the last 14 games.

Snider's 18th homer into the left field seats broke a 3-3 tie in a game that was delayed in starting by rain, then twice interrupted, and finally finished under lights more than four hours after it was supposed to have begun.

Junior Gilliam's fourth homer in the third inning, Roy Campanella's 19th and Gil Hodges' 10th, both in the sixth, accounted for all the early Dodger runs.

The Cub scores also came on a homer by rookie Jim King in the fourth after Gene Baker walked and Ransom Jackson singled.

Billy Loes struck out 11 men, his high for the season, as he won his seventh game with a five-hitter.

With two out in the ninth, pinch hitter Frankie Baumholtz doubled but Loes struck out Eddie Miksis to end the game. It was the first time Loes ever went the nine-inning route against Chicago.

Warren Hacker gave up all four homers before he was replaced by Hal Jeffcoat, following Snider's clout in the seventh.

The four Dodger homers boosted their season total to 86 in 54 games. With 100 games to play, New York Giants' record of 221, set in 1947, is in danger. The Giants, incidentally dropped 14 games behind the Brooks when they were rained out of their game with St. Louis.

It was raining at game time and the start was delayed for 27 minutes. The rains came down again 5:07.

St. Ambrose Graduate, 7 Time Letter Winner, Will Coach 3 Sports

Routt High School has named Larry Zitkus, a graduate of St. Ambrose College in Davenport, Iowa, as their new athletic director.

Zitkus comes to Routt as an aftermath of Jim Smarjesse's decision to coach at Peoria Spalding High School.

Zitkus is 22 years old and graduated from St. Ambrose in early June. While at the Iowa college Zitkus performed in three sports. He lettered in football for four years, basketball two years, and track one.

The new Routt mentor, who hails from Sterling, Illinois, was a guard on the gridiron, guard and forward in basketball, and a weight man in track.

George Lehner, principal of Routt High School, stated that Zitkus would have charge of all three sports: football, basketball, and track. Besides his coaching duties Zitkus will teach in the field of social studies.

Predicts Higher Prices Will Follow Wage Increases

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks said Saturday a new round of wage increases in government and industry may be reflected in some slightly higher prices.

He added the new Ford labor contract amounts to more of an increase in unemployment benefits than a full-scale guaranteed annual wage. A hard and fast guarantee, Weeks said, is a "practical impossibility" which would leave no hope for business under certain conditions.

Weeks was quizzed on a radio show—CBS Capitol Clockroom—about the Ford contract and prospects for a new outburst of inflation.

The Ford agreement with the CIO United Auto Workers called for company contributions to supplement state unemployment benefits for laid-off workers for up to 26 weeks.

"I have never seen any particular merit in making unemployment compensation returns high enough to the point where there is really just as much incentive to take a layoff as there is to keep on working."

The Ford contract is aimed at paying workers, during layoffs, 60 to 65 per cent of their regular take-home pay.

As for inflation, Weeks said the Eisenhower administration hopes to keep the economy stabilized. But he said increased labor cost "obviously means that if the industries involved are to continue to make any money and pay taxes to the government, that the increases in cost must eventually be reflected in increased prices. That is just a.b.c."

Warns Of Fake Furnace Racket

John G. Prickett, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, warned homeowners in this area Saturday to be on guard against the furnace repair racket which is revived annually at about this time. In issuing this seasonal caution, Mr. Prickett emphasized that, according to the National Better Business Bureau with which the Chamber is affiliated, the great majority of firms engaged in furnace cleaning and repairing service are entirely reliable and it is only a minority in this business who use dishonest practices.

"Over the years, there have been a great many complaints to Better Business Bureaus and to Chambers of Commerce charging that representatives of furnace organizations frequently have gained admission to homes by posing as 'inspectors' or as being from the local utility company," Prickett said. After examining the furnace, the role of the 'inspector' is skillfully switched to that of the salesman. After a cleaning, re-setting and re-cementing job results, work may be started to the point of dismantling the furnace. The familiar pattern of misrepresentation then calls for a work stoppage until a company 'engineer' can come and evaluate some questionable aspect of the equipment. When he looks it over, he warns the homeowner that the furnace is unsafe and that escaping carbon monoxide fumes may kill everyone in the house if it is given any further use. Many homeowners have purchased new furnaces needlessly on such misrepresentations. Others have been inconvenienced by refusal of the service organization to reassemble the allegedly dangerous furnace.

The Chamber of Commerce secretary said all homeowners should investigate the reliability of the firm before engaging work.

The Pat McHatten Sign Company will for the eighth consecutive year handle the exclusive advertising and sign work. The McHatten Company has made the fair outstanding for its professional advertising appeal. One area alone carries 360 feet of banner advertising that has been so widely acclaimed and accepted that available space creates a problem for the management.

Wally Baptist of the Baptist Sound Service will return to the Fair for the fifth consecutive year. With the presentation of the finest stage, circus, animal, and high acts, coupled with name artists, the fair has grown to such proportions that Baptist Sound is the only company in the state with equipment capable of meeting the Griggsville standards.

The 1955 exposition is represented by G. H. Linstromberg of Lindy's in the handling of the largest outdoor billboard coverage ever contracted in this part of the State. The Lindy Company has arranged art work and sub-contracts for billboards throughout eleven counties surrounding the fair.

As in previous years the Jacksonville Journal-Courier and Station WLDS are serving the Griggsville show in a continuing program of advertising in the Jacksonville market.

POSTMASTERS NOMINATED WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has sent to the Senate these postmaster nominations for Ill.: Roy J. Bowen, La Harpe; Virgil H. Huff, Modesto, and Theodore W. Whitehouse, Mount Olive.

About a hundred men interested in meat production and marketing attended a meeting at Farm Bureau hall in Carrollton Tuesday evening to consider the pros and cons of establishing a new market place. It would serve about an eight-county area and would be affiliated with the Illinois Livestock Marketing association, an I. A. A. co-op now operating with 20 member companies. Most of these companies are in northern and eastern Illinois.

After listening to E. V. Stoedel of Chicago, I. A. A. marketing specialist, and Larry Colvis of Decatur, manager of the livestock marketing co-op, as they told the possible advantages of an affiliated company in this area, the group discussed the prospect of the plan.

The general feeling indicated that the plan deserved close scrutiny by the marketing committee chairmen of the counties involved: Cass, Morgan, Scott, Greene, Macoupin, Calhoun, Pike and Jersey counties. Six of the committee chairmen were present for the conference and they are shown above from left: William E. Schafer, Jerseyville, Jersey; Clarence Duerwer, Waverly, Morgan; Edward Leach, Chesterfield, Macoupin; Gerald W. Berg, Hillview, Greene; Walter Meyer, Kampsville, Calhoun; and Truman Scott, Winchester, Scott. Stoedel said that if the new market got as much as 30% of all meat animals raised in the area that it would decrease marketing costs by as much as two-thirds.

He suggested a central spot with ample facilities, a daily hog market and a weekly auction with the Illinois Livestock Marketing association putting in a floor bid at the auction.

He said similar installations were proving very profitable in many sections of Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. He figured auction sales costs as high as 5% now, and asserted that the three states had auctions with costs down as low as 2%, less the end-of-the-business-year patronage refund.

Colvis reviewed the activities of his company during the last 20 years and its 20 member companies.

"This is a good place to get your questions answered," Garlich says.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

$64 BILLION QUESTION WHICH WAY PRICES?

Four Experts See Little Change What will farm prices be in 5, 10, or 20 years? About the same as now, according to four prominent agricultural economists who spoke at the recent Farm Appraisal Conference held here at the University.

The speakers on this interesting, important, and hazardous question were Ernest T. Baughman, Assistant Vice President, Federal Reserve Bank, Chicago; William G. Murray, Professor of Agricultural Economics, Iowa State College; Thomas A. Porter, Research Director, Farm Credit Administration of St. Louis; and Lawrence J. Norton, Head, Department of Agricultural Economics, University of Illinois.

None of the speakers could see any large change in the average level of farm prices. Most of them believe that average prices of farm products will work a little lower over the next few years, mainly because more products are being produced than are being used at present prices.

If farm prices remain relatively stable for 20 years, it will be the first time in our history that this has happened. Why expect more price stability in the future than in the past?

The speakers pointed out that we have adopted a strong government policy of maintaining price stability. (This is in strong contrast with past policies, which usually were aimed at maintaining a silver or gold standard and paying off the national debt.)

Here are some points that were emphasized by the different speakers: Baughman said that the present large number of debtors would strongly oppose any move to increase the value of money, that is, to lower prices and wages or to allow them to decline. He also pointed out that some strong economic groups in the nation urge drastic government action to promote ever higher levels of employment and wages. He said that this pressure might eventually grow strong enough to bring higher prices at least for manufactured products.

He said, however, that prices of farm products seem likely to go a little lower because of present large supplies.

Porter said that our present rate of buying is being kept up by building up a large amount of credit. Since credit for many purposes already is very easy, further easing of credit may not be very effective in checking the next recession. He also pointed out that spending for defense is a tremendous factor in our present economy, now amounting to about 48 billion dollars a year. No one can forecast long-time trends in defense spending.

Murray said that the idea of "normal" prices and values, very popular 10 and 20 years ago, does not have much support now. He appeared to be more skeptical than the others that prices can be stabilized. Norton said that, in his opinion, farm prices will remain within about 10 percent of their present level for several years. We have higher prices than prewar because of (1) the devaluation of the dollar in 1933-34, and (2) a permanent increase in the supply of money that was created to finance World War II. Most U. S. prices are in line with world prices. Norton believes that banking authorities (The Federal Reserve Banks) will hold money and credit tight enough to prevent any inflation in the foreseeable future, barring war. Also large stocks of farm products and big output of industrial products will help hold prices down.

Most marble is very old rock, much of it from the pre-Cambrian eras.

OUCH!

A crossbred White Leghorn-Barré rooster apparently strived for a new record Wednesday when she laid a 6 1/2 oz. egg that measured 8 1/4 inches around. The picture of it and an ordinary 2 oz. egg may help you realize that the hen did a day's work Wednesday.

The hen, unidentified and hence without acclaim, was one of the laying flock owned by Mrs. George Musch, who lives north of Chapin. It was brought to the Journal-Courier office by Lee R. Lyons, 316 E. Lafayette avenue, who operates country egg-poultry buying routes in this area.

"I've handled lots of eggs," Lyons says, "but never ran across one like this. It's really king-sized."

SWEDISH, DUTCH 'IFYEs' NOW IN GREENE

A young man from Sweden and a girl from the Netherlands are now studying agriculture, community and family life in Greene county. They are sponsored by IFYE, International Farm Youth Exchange.

They will spend three weeks in Greene county. Then Olov Bjorkman, who lives on a farm in Sweden just 30 miles south of the Arctic Circle, will go to a ranch in Montana. And Miss Gatske Zeinstra of Friesan province, Netherlands, will go to Texas. Both will return to their homes early in November.

While they are visiting America other farm youths, some from America, will be visiting similar farms in Sweden and Netherlands.

Enthusiasts of the IFYE movement have been elated with the results.

"Ignorance and misunderstanding are more dangerous than any bomb," they declare. "IFYE, in the short time it has been in operation, has done much toward mutual understanding through knowledge."

The visitor from Holland lives on a 120-acre farm in the northern part of her country. They milk 45 Friesian cows daily, ("all handwork," says Miss Zeinstra) and the milk is sold to a nearby factory, where it is processed into butter and cheese.

OLOV BJORKMAN will spend the next three weeks on the dairy farm operated by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Manning just north of Roodhouse. The Mannings are now milking 52 head of cattle; they have installed a new bulk cooler and pipe line and expect to have as many as 80 head of Holsteins in production next winter.

Bjorkman lives on a 330-acre farm just south of the Arctic Circle, where the temperature dips down to 60 below zero during the winter. Only 30 acres are cultivated, most of it in hay crops which are dried on ricks. The balance of the land is in timber, which is harvested on an annual rotation basis. The pulpwood is floated downstream to the mill.

"We usually start the float about the first of June," Bjorkman said. "I suppose my father and my brother are busy with the task right now."

Both Miss Zeinstra and Bjorkman speak halting English. They will be special guests when the Rural Youth of this district camp June 17-19 at the 4-H camp.

This is the second time that the Mannings have been hosts to an IFYE. Two years ago Alan Richardson, young New Zealand dairyman, spent three weeks with them. While here he spoke to many organizations and was so impressed with Rotary that he organized a club in his town when he got home.

The two visitors were brought to Greenfield Tuesday afternoon by Dick Lyons of Urbana, 4-H agriculture extension specialist, and were greeted at the McDonnell Cafe by their hosts and Greene county extension workers.

Others present for the occasion included Francis Kuhnline, vice president of the Farm Bureau; Mrs. Lyons; Mary Lake, assistant home adviser; Ethel Belote, home adviser; Mrs. Cleatus Reynolds, president of the Home Bureau; Whitie Berger, assistant farm adviser, and Bill Brown, farm adviser of Greene county.

FAREWELL TO THE SELDENS

As President William K. Selden leaves Illinois College to assume a position of national significance in the field of higher education, we are happy to join the many friends he and his charming wife have made here in expressing two-fold feelings.

First, a genuine feeling of regret that the Seldens are leaving Jacksonville. Friendly and cooperative in every worthwhile civic endeavor, in a short space of time they endeavored themselves to their fellow townsmen through their willingness to enter into things, accepting their full share of responsibility and more.

President Selden has made a lasting mark as President of Illinois College. Under his energetic leadership "Old Illinois" has its eyes focused upon the future. Though ever mindful of its rich heritage, it is facing up bravely to the problems of its second century. President Selden has greatly contributed to the progress of Illinois College by calling for an examination of these problems and for action to meet them. It is a tribute to his administration that the trustees of the college saw fit to elect him a member of the Board.

President Selden also achieved a position of statewide recognition in collegiate affairs during his tenure here. Governor Stratton appointed him a member of the State Commission on Higher Education. Through unstinting work he soon came to be regarded as the "spark-plug" of the Commission. Both Illinois College and the State of Illinois will greatly miss his services.

Our second feeling, however, is one of joy for the Selden family in that President Selden has been named Executive Secretary of the National Commission on Accrediting in Washington, D. C. This important call to duty will give him greater opportunities to serve the cause of higher education in this country.

As he leaves to assume his challenging new position, we wish the Seldens the best of luck and bid them God-speed.

The Mature Parent

Solving Older Child's Need To Believe in Own Rights

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Before the Ames' second son was born, they planned a brief employment of someone after Mrs. Ames' return from the hospital.

But Philip's birth left her needing extra medical services. When they'd been paid for, there was no money to employ anyone. And Mrs. Ames, her physical weakness firmly fixed in her mind, resented this intensely. Anger so dominated her during the first crowded weeks at home that she could not think, "Well, since I have nobody to help me do everything, I won't try to do it myself."

She needed Mr. Ames' sympathy, so she couldn't express her resentment to him. The baby was helpless, so she couldn't give it to him. But her older son was both sturdy and incapable of sympathy. So her irritation found in Bobby its ideal target.

Within three months of his brother's birth, he had become an intolerably demanding "show off."

When Mrs. Ames was nursing Philip, he'd use distracting antics to compel some of the attention he regarded as his property. He'd force it by deliberately spilling his food. Called for his bath, he'd jump up and down on a chair, yelling, "Boo-boo! You're a Boo-boo! Darn, darn!" in the dreadfully mistaken delusion that he was commanding admiration.

However, he was an intelligent little boy. Gradually, he realized that his mother's "Come here, you bad boy!" did not express the approving attention he remembered so hungrily. And groping for another way to regain it, hit on an old, old solution.

He thought, "If I ask nothing for myself, perhaps this very important Mommy of mine will smile at me again instead of giving all her smiles to this horrible baby."

Luckily, his mother found a friend. In Bobby's nursery school, his teacher had noted his scared technique for securing toleration.

She saw him putting up with pushes lest other children dislike him. And because she so clearly saw this older brother's bewildered need to believe in his own rights, was finally able to show his mother what she saw.

Now when the baby grabs one of Bobby's blocks, she no longer champions the baby's desires at the cost of Bobby's. Instead, she puts an arm about Bobby, saying encouragingly, "That's your block. Take it away from Philip. Take it gently, darling, because he's little—but take it, no matter how he cries. It is your block."

With this support, Bobby has begun to develop respect for his own desires. Because his mother no longer calls them "bad," he can assert them without the old belligerence. Because he knows she respects them, too, he trusts her even when she has to deny him his desires.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Every time the Russian sneeze, the world twitches. What are they up to? It must be dark, devious and diabolical. There were even some misgivings they might outwit President Eisenhower if he sat down with them.

They're devious and clever. But they get too much credit for cleverness.

What they wanted more than anything for years was to keep the Western Allies unarmed and separated and West Germany neutralized. Thanks to Stalin, they failed in both. Sour, stubborn, Stalin yielded nothing.

Then he got too tough and upset the apple cart by letting the Korean War begin. This not only showed the West into alliance and rearming but eventually into letting Germany rearm and join the partnership.

For a year after Stalin's death his heirs, as if they could think of nothing better, followed his tactics out the window: threats and dire warnings if Germany was permitted to rearm.

Perhaps they thought this technique still had a chance, for until late in 1954 the Allies were squabbling among themselves on letting the Germans have guns again.

The Kremlin team must have seen the jig was up Dec. 30 when the French Chamber of Deputies voted for German independence and rearmament. Not long afterwards things began to change.

On Feb. 8 Stalin's successor, Premier Georgi Malenkov, was bounced. This was widely interpreted in the guessing West as meaning (A) a tougher Kremlin policy and, or, (B) that there was now a fierce struggle for power in the Kremlin.

Perhaps the following was closer to the truth for, as events showed, the Kremlin policy got softer instead of tougher and nobody has lost his head there yet:

1. They were losing with Stalin's tactics. By a shift, to a show of friendliness and cooperation, they might still weaken the Western Alliance and even keep Germany from rearming since it hadn't started to rearm yet.

2. If they kept on the way they were going, with the West building up its strength, they might head into a war which would leave them pulverized.

3. A change in tactics needed a change in people. Malenkov should not be in the showcase if they were going to display a new face of good fellowship and sweet reasonableness. Malenkov, like Stalin, looks sour and immovable. Judging from his pictures, he's an introvert. Good-Time-Charleys are extroverts.

The Kremlin shoved forward two men who at least act like Good-Time Charleys: Premier Nikolai Bulganin with a velvety beard which makes him look more like a symphony orchestra conductor than a revolutionist; and Nikita Khrushchev, credited with being the real boss, who performed like a butter-and-egg salesman on a spree when he visited Yugoslavia.

In time Red China got in on the act. It had good reason to want the West to relax. It needed trade with the West. The new Kremlin tactics evolved fairly fast.

They agreed to Austrian independence, with Austria neutralized. They agreed to a Big Four conference. They visited Yugoslavia with grins instead of threats. The Red Chinese suggested talks with the United States and let the shooting around Formosa die down.

Now the Russians have invited Germany's Chancellor Julius Raab there earlier in the year and no doubt with the same purpose: to try for a neutralized Germany.

Reluctant Guest—Supports—Signals—Error—Evacuation—Compensations

By DOUGLAS LARSEN AND KENNETH O. GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondents

Gilmore

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Vice President Richard Nixon has become hostess Glenn Capritz's only social failure. In spite of many imaginative tries, she has never produced him at one of her parties.

She has sent him engraved invitations, wires, letters, notes, tried to call him and duplicated the effort on Mrs. Nixon.

She has even had top Republicans attempt to bring them over several times. But no soap. The Nixons have resisted her alcohol, caviar and basement night club.

The V.P. has never openly given a reason for this resistance. Friends say it is because he was never asked to her house while he was a senator.

DIGNIFIED Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson is the favorite target of salty Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.).

After Benson told a meeting of Republican women that flexible price supports are stabilizing the economy, Kerr wrote to his constituents—capitalization was his: "Imagine trying to sell that phony idea to women! All their lives they have been shopping IN VAIN for 'SUPPORTS' that would be both completely flexible and FIRMLY effective."

PARTY SURVIVAL techniques: Attorney General Herbert Brownell has a secret signal arranged with most of the waiters and bartenders who work the cocktail circuit. When he wants plain ginger ale he flashes the high-sign and asks for Scotch. Defense Secretary Charles Wilson heads straight for the nearest comfortable chair with drink in hand and lets his wife handle the roving social chores.

A COUPLE of American Legion auxiliary gals from New Mexico are really rep to what's going on in the world. Anxious to rally support behind a bill to bolster the country's reserve forces, they composed powerful letters to their senator recently, asking his support of the measure. Only trouble was they addressed their pleas to Sen. Carl A. Hatch who has been out of that body for seven years and is a district judge.

THE DEAN OF DIPLOMATS, Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstjerne, has his best ideas at other embassies. At a reception at the Italian embassy this week he was discussing the big Civil Defense test evacuation of the government agencies coming up and asked if any plans had been made to move society folk like Perle Mesta out of town, too. "What a tragedy it would be to save only the government officials from the hydrogen bomb and leave such an important part of the culture of Washington behind," he said.

THE BURDEN of U. S. senators weigh heavily on their shoulders. "But there are some compensations to the job," Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) admitted to colleagues during a recent debate on the floor. "It gives you the privilege of not having to take castor oil and saves you from drying dishes."

Later he explained he came from a large family and was always stuck with the dish-drying chore which he hated. He disliked that second only to taking medicine.

THE CHAIN-LETTER FAD familiar in the U. S. is now being used to fight communism in Czechoslovakia.

A government-controlled newspaper in Prague admits that anti-Communist letters containing a prayer are sweeping over the country. Each one directs the recipient to make nine copies and forward them to relatives and friends.

A PERSPIRING Department of Interior photographer was frantically shooting pictures of Secretary Douglas McKay shaking hands with each member of a large delegation of visitors in his office. When the photographer whispered to the secretary that he hadn't brought enough film with him, McKay announced acidly:

"Well, I've at last found a man who has gone too far with Republican economy in government."

BABOTIE is the newest dish in town. It's something you eat by the way. This exotic rice and curry combination was served to guests at a Jewish party thrown by the ambassador from the Union of South Africa. They ate it up, except for one disappointed congressman. "I'd heard it was the name of a special native dancer who was going to entertain," he grumbled and left.

SO THEY SAY

If a teacher with 35 pupils in her class earned the lowest baby-sitting rate of 25 cents per child, her annual pay would be around $10,237. Yet the average salary of the teacher in this country is around $3700 a year.

THOUGHTS

Breakfast Helps Weight Control in Older People

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Older men and women should realize that "lose excess pounds are a dangerous possession. They place extra burden on the heart, limit physical activity (mild and regular physical activity is a must for good tone), are a predisposing cause of diabetes and osteoarthritis and tend to decrease life expectancy, according to Dr. Russell L. Cecil, medical director, National Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation.

Dr. Cecil reminds senior citizens that as physical activity becomes more limited they need fewer calories.

An elderly woman needs only about 1500 calories a day to maintain weight and an elderly man not more than 2000. Therefore, to lose weight one must eat less than this.

Many dieticians believe a basic breakfast is an ideal way to meet your nutritional needs while reducing weight.

A bowl of cereal and milk thus becomes an important keystone in your reducing diet. Not only does it provide necessary protein, essential B vitamins and minerals, but also bulk which makes that well-fed feeling last longer.

Here are some breakfasts averaging around 400 calories:

Breakfast: Orange juice, canned or frozen (1 cup); oatmeal—quick type (2/3 cup); whole milk (1 cup); raisin toast (1 slice); butter or margarine (1 teaspoon); coffee, black, instant.

Breakfast: Grapefruit, small (1/2); pre-sweetened cornflakes (1 ounce); whole milk (1 cup); whole wheat bread (1 slice); butter or margarine (1 teaspoon); coffee, black, instant.

Breakfast: Fresh strawberries (10 large); shredded wheat (1/2); whole milk, hot or cold (8 ounces); oven-ready baking powder biscuits (1); butter or margarine (1 teaspoon); coffee, black, instant.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Corned beef hash with poached egg, buttered spinach, soft rolls, butter or margarine, beet and onion salad, doughnuts, coffee, tea, milk.

Women Have Pleasures, No Need to Envy Men

Men may have some pleasures women don't share. But what men ever knew:

The feeling of triumph a woman gets when a carefully planned party turns out to be the success she was afraid it might not be? He says casually, "Well, everybody seemed to have a good time" and lets it go at that.

The elation that comes from finding exactly the right hat to set off a spring suit? A man finds a hat the right size and the right color the first place he looks. He squares his shoulders and pulls in his chin while he inspects it in a mirror and says, "I'll take it" and immediately forgets the whole transaction.

The great sense of relief when a daughter who has been afraid she might not be invited to a school dance gets the all important phone call and begins to bubble instead of droop? A man assumes that any boy in his right mind would be proud to take his daughter anywhere she might want to go.

WOMEN HAVE TRIUMPHS, AS WELL

The joy of working out a color scheme for a room and having it turn out just the way it was visualized, down to the last distinctive touch? A man just sees that it looks better than it did before without seeing any of the dream or the hard work that went into creating the room as it is.

The deep sense of pride and satisfaction a woman feels when a man dismises it lightly with, "This is good. What is it, anyhow?"

Yes, sir. There are a lot of purely feminine satisfactions that men don't share. So why should any woman ever envy them their special enthusiasms?

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Finding the Best in the Bible

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
Is there a best in the Bible? someone may ask. Is not the Bible all good?

Yes, the Bible is all good in what it tells us concerning God. But I have recently written of the Bible as a great book of truth and realism concerning man. In its great honesty that truth and realism depicts man in all his evil, as well as in his capacity of good.

Anyone who has been studying in the Books of Kings and Chronicles need not be reminded of the pages that reek in the blood of slaughter and assassination (See such passages as II Chronicles 28: 6-8 and II Chronicles 22:10 and 23:15, among many).

Appreciation of the Bible's honesty in recording facts as they were cannot make the record of evil pleasurable, and the Bible would not be what it is, if it were only the story of man's evil and of his failure. So there is a best in the Bible; to be constantly sought and borne in mind and heart as one reads the sadder and grimmer pages.

That best in the Bible is found even near the records of iniquity, in individuals and kings who did righteously in evil times, in prophets who rebuked the sin in kings and peoples with fearless proclamations of the judgment of God, and in saints who lived lives of holy contemplation and aspiration.

It is my own feeling that courses of study in the Old Testament, particularly of such Books as Kings and Chronicles, should be interspersed with much study and reference to the New Testament.

I question the wisdom of carrying children, and even adults, through long weeks of unbroken study of records of so much evil, although I recall that when my nephews and nieces used to spend the summers with me, and I read the Bible in daily family devotions, they used to say: "Read the Old Testament, Uncle."

I suspect that they enjoyed the stories of wars and adventures, of which there are plenty. There is in old folk, too, an interest in books like Treasure Island, in pirates, and adventurous rascals, without any intention of being rascals themselves, and perhaps with little realization of the bloody and violent backgrounds.

Whether or not it is a rather harmless, or a deplorable, interest, I don't know. It may be only an infusion of something different into one's normal life and environment. Some very good and harmless people take a great interest in mystery stories about crime and murder.

But I have a feeling that every Bible lesson, whatever its theme, ought to have injected into it some teaching about Jesus, and something about the teaching of Jesus. It ought to be Christian as well as Biblical.

For those who may feel as I do there is something of interest and profit in a recent book of seventeen sermons, nine of them based on the Beatitudes, and the other eight on sayings and experiences of Jesus. Their author is Dr. Frederick M. Meek, Minister of the Old South Church, in Boston.

Dr. Meek has just come through a tragic experience, which fortunately has had a happy ending. A throat infection imposed upon him a complete and unbroken silence for six months. He has recovered and recently returned to his pulpit. His book of sermons is aptly entitled "The Life They Live," they are essentially helps toward living it.

This and a former book of sermons, Monday to Friday is Not Enough, are published by the Oxford University Press.

Prince Has Birthday

Here is Queen Elizabeth, Princess Anne, Prince Charles and his father Philip. Charles is celebrating his birthday this month. Sometimes he thinks it is very nice to be a prince when he rides in a carriage and all the people wave at him. And he likes seeing them put the beautiful crown on his Mommy.

But sometimes he wishes he could be just like other boys, and go to a regular school instead of having a teacher just for himself at home. Maybe, he will go to a regular school next fall. I hope he will, don't you?

Circus Time In South Jacksonville School

By Loella Sloan Young

Those of you children who have attended school at South Jacksonville will be sure to recognize Mrs. Lansink's first grade circus. It is really a work of art, and has become a favorite project over the past years.

One can almost smell the sawdust and hear the circus band playing a peppy circus march, to start the foot tapping and fill every spectacle with excitement.

In getting ready to make this fine project, the boys and girls studied the circus. They read stories, viewed film strips and a circus movie. So by the time they were ready to start the art work, they were real experts on the subject.

The entire project shows real imagination, and some fine original art work.

Cary Florence and Lowell Smith display real pride in their project. The "tent" itself, extends across one entire end of the room. It is red striped with scalloped edges. This fine circus features two side shows. The first displays all the usual circus animals. If you'll look closely, perhaps you can see the baby kangaroo, peeking carefully out of his mother's pouch.

There's a frisky striped zebra, pandas, bears, long necked giraffes and fierce lions and tigers roaring in their gaily colored cage.

"Cock-A-Doodle-Do!"

Trip To Kansas Ranch

By Loella Sloan Young

It was a crisp October morning. Rocky, the big red rooster, stopped scratching for worms in the rich brown earth, and glanced toward the road where a car sat parked by the mail box.

T-o-o-t! T-o-o-t! The mail man was earlier than usual this morning, and he must have an important piece of mail to be tooting his horn like that.

Mother opened the door and hurried across the yard. "Special-Delivery letter this morning," called Mr. White. "You'll have to sign for it."

He handed Mother a little pad and she signed her name. It was a long white envelope with a big stamp in the corner.

"What is it, Mother?" cried Georgia from the door.

"I think it's the letter your Daddy has been waiting for," said Mother. "It's from Uncle Aaron in Kansas. Billy, you put your cap on and go take it to Daddy. He'll want it right away."

Mother had been right. It was the letter Daddy had wanted. It was from Uncle Aaron saying he had some little calves to sell and if Daddy were interested, to bring the family and come to his ranch.

Pack Right Away

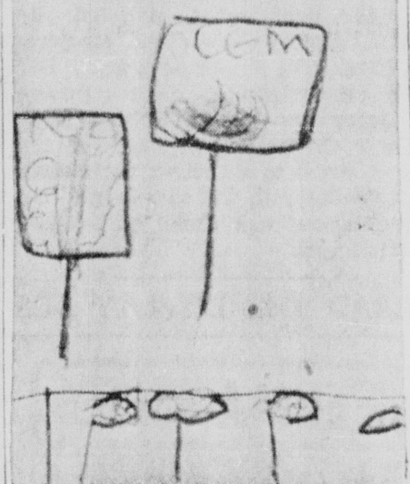

"And so," Daddy said that night, "if you can pack tonight, Mother, I'd like to leave early in the morning. A few days on the ranch will be good for us all."

"Do you mean we are going to visit a real ranch, Daddy—the one with horses and cows and cowboys like Grandma Young told us about last summer?" cried Billy.

"Well," said Daddy, "it won't be quite like the ones you see in the movies, but it will be a real ranch with all those things. Perhaps you can learn to be a cowboy while you are there," he said, as he winked

Puzzle Problem

Remember last week we printed this Puzzle Problem: If a hen and a half, lays an egg and a half, in a day and a half, how many eggs do six hens lay in seven days? Well, here is the answer: Since you cannot have a half a hen, and still have her lay eggs you will have to figure on the basis of three hens, and double to get your answer for six hens. The answer is 28 eggs.

NEW PUZZLE PROBLEM

Here's a new Puzzle Problem: How many square feet of dirt would there be in a hole 5 feet long, 3 feet wide and 2 feet deep? We'll print the answer to this one next Sunday. Remember, there's a catch in this problem too.

WORLD'S LARGEST FLAG

DETROIT (AP)—The world's largest flag is ready for its annual appearance on Flag Day, June 14. The huge flag weighs three quarters of a ton and measures 235 by 105 feet, roughly half the size of a football field. The J. L. Hudson Co. department store had it made for once-a-year display on the front of its 14-story downtown store.

wonderful place with a beautiful little river gurgling along through the lovely green fields.

They saw the cattle rounded up by the busy cowboys and loaded on the railroad cars, and a little colt that was so gentle he would eat from Uncle Aaron's hand. There were big tractors and little tractors, corn pickers and mowers, combines and balers.

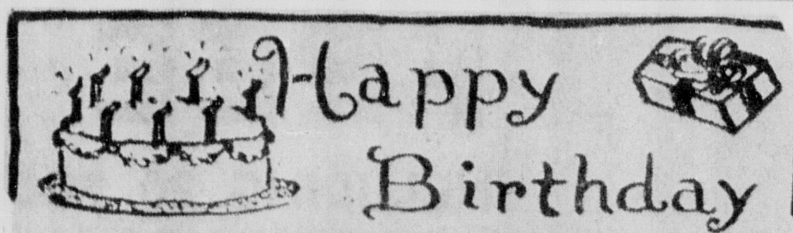

But of all the wonderful things Billy and Georgie saw, the cowboys were the best of all.

It was a busy, busy time and finally one night, Daddy said "We are going home tomorrow, boys. We've had a grand visit and Daddy has some fine new calves to put on our pasture. So off to bed with you, and be up bright and early in the morning."

As Billy and Georgie lay down to sleep they both agreed they had had a fine time on the ranch. Someday when they were as big as Daddy, they would return to help Uncle Aaron and would ride real horses all day shouting Hi! Hi! Hi! as they rounded up the calves.

Would you like to hear more stories about Billy and Georgie and Rocky their big rooster? If you would write to the Junior Journal-Courier and tell us.

Next week we will begin a serial THE FOLLOWER that will tell the adventures of a boy learning to build tall masted ships in early America.

FAMOUS BIRTHDAY

By Doris Walsh Hendrickson

You boys and girls who have June birthdays share this month with the woman who wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Baby Harriet was born June 14, 1811. There were already sisters and brothers to welcome her. One of these brothers, Edward Beecher, grew up to become the first president of Illinois College here in Jacksonville.

When Harriet Beecher grew up, she married a minister, the Rev. Calvin Stowe. Of course she often visited her brother, Edward, in Jacksonville.

Disliked Slavery

At the time when Mrs. Stowe was a young woman, some people owned slaves. Harriet Beecher Stowe did not think it was right for anyone to own another person, and she knew that some of the slave-owners were unkind to their slaves.

Mrs. Stowe, although she was busy with children of her own now, put her feeling about slavery into the book called "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In it she tells a story that sometimes makes you laugh, sometimes almost makes you cry, and has many exciting adventures in it too.

Many Like Story

Many people read this interesting book, and it made most of them feel just the way Harriet Beecher Stowe did about slavery. So Abraham Lincoln called her "The little woman who wrote the book that made this big war." (He meant the Civil War.)

If you would like to read "Uncle Tom's Cabin," I am sure you will find it at the Public Library.

First of Its Happy Owners!

The Cadillac you see in the picture has just started out on Mission Number One: to make its first owner and his family members of the happiest motoring fraternity in the world—for as long as they wish.

And then it will be ready for Mission Number Two: to do the same thing for its second owner. And so on, in turn, for its third owner and its fourth—and, mayhap, for an almost indefinite number of others.

In fact, a Cadillac just about refuses to give up, if it is treated fairly and driven with common sense. Even after the body has ceased to exist, the heart of a Cadillac often beats on.

You can see those tough old engines and chassis everywhere. Maybe you'll see one supplying the power for a country sawmill... or pulling a plow... or serving as a truck, with an improvised body. Give it regular, decent care—and a Cadillac chassis is all but indestructible from normal usage.

Of course, as the purchaser of a new Cadillac, you would not expect to utilize more than a minor portion of this ability to serve. You would look forward to changing models from time to time, in order to enjoy the benefits of styling and engineering advancements.

But what carefree and satisfying performance this quality foretells for the period during which you would expect to keep the car! It is the world's best guarantee of the first owner's satisfaction.

All this, of course, is just one more solid reason for owning a Cadillac—in addition to such obvious reasons as beauty and luxury and pride of ownership.

Better come in today—and be the first of a Cadillac's proud and happy owners.

Fair Directors At Virginia To Hear Reports

VIRGINIA—The Board of Directors of the Cass County Fair Association will meet at the Farm Bureau building in Virginia on Monday, June 13. At that time final reports of the canvass for funds for the 1955 fair will be received.

The fair will be held on Aug. 26-27.

Hold Health Dinner

The annual dinner of the Cass County Tuberculosis Association was held at 8 p.m., June 7, at the Virginia Presbyterian church. Dinner was served by the Young Women's class of the church.

OUR ELECTRIC SYSTEM IS READY FOR AIR CONDITIONING!

Construction crews have been working all Spring rebuilding our electric distribution lines. Very soon now the entire city of Jacksonville will be supplied with electric service from a 4160 volt primary system, which has replaced the former 2300 volt system. This change, which involved installing new wire, new transformers and other new equipment, will just about double the former capacity of our electric system.

Added customers, increased use of electricity, and the big increase in air conditioning sales have speeded up our rebuilding program. Now—we are years ahead of expected growth.

You can be assured that if and when you install an air conditioning unit, there is plenty of electric capacity at the service entrance.

Don't go through another hot summer without air conditioning. The new window units fit flush with window casings, are easy to install, and have greater cooling capacity than ever. Install yours now—be ready for those hot, humid days.

HAVE YOUR ELECTRIC CONTRACTOR CHECK YOUR HOUSE WIRING. EACH AIR CONDITIONER SHOULD HAVE ITS OWN INDIVIDUAL ELECTRIC CIRCUIT FOR BEST RESULTS. FOR AIR CONDITIONERS OF ¾ HP OR LARGER, BE SURE TO SPECIFY UNITS BUILT FOR 230 VOLT OPERATION.

A moment of silent prayer was observed for the 11 members of the group who have passed on.

Florence Chapin Rose, who was president of the class, made a few remarks. A large number of letters and wires were read by the class secretary, Verne Smith, assisted by Mrs. Smith. Each member present was called on to make a few remarks concerning the past years. The class adviser, Miss Minnie Balke, was unable to attend because of ill health.

Don Ransdell showed slides of Miss Balke which he took two years ago when the Floeths and the Ransdells visited her home in Pekin. Class members and guests enjoyed the gathering so well plans were made for a fortieth reunion to be held in five years.

Congregation Buys Church Site

Faith Lutheran church of Jacksonville Wednesday completed the purchase of a 2.2 acre plot in Passavant Park. Ground will be broken soon for the first unit of the $300,000 plant planned by the congregation, which will include the main worship sanctuary, Sunday school unit, parish hall and parsonage. The first unit will seat approximately 200 people and there will be adequate parking facilities for 150 automobiles.

Shown in the photo, from left, are Ernest Cassal, chairman of the church building committee and a member of the church council; Rev. Gilbert V. Dossi, the pastor; and A. W. Applebee of the Jacksonville Savings and Loan association and the developer of Passavant Park.

The new church will be the first in the northwestern section of growing Jacksonville. It will be located about a quarter of a mile east of Passavant Area Memorial hospital, south of Walnut street and east of Finley.

At present the congregation meets at 316 E. Superior avenue.

Death Has 3 Lives

THE STORY: In an attempt to capture a murder suspect who had attempted to blackmail Private Detective Mike Shayne, a dummy package containing a small bomb was turned over to the suspect. As a result the suspect's car plunges into the bay. Mike is nearby in a rowboat. When police arrive he helps search for the submerged car.

THE RECOLLECTION: "He accelerated so fast. He must have been going 40 when it happened. Even then, it might have worked the way Michael planned if the guard fence hadn't happened to be down right at that point."

"It was set for 10 seconds after you pulled the pin," the reporter explained. "Mike wanted to give you time to get out of the way, but he couldn't risk giving him time to pick it up and examine it." He shrugged wearily. "Now he's going to have a time explaining to the police what he was doing out in a rowboat right where the accident happened. The cop who fixed the bomb for him was plenty curious, though he didn't ask many questions at the time. But if he ever adds things up and gets the right answer." He shrugged again as he left the end of the Causeway and turned toward Lucy's address.

Rourke followed her to the foyer where she unlocked an inner door and preceded him up one flight of stairs.

Rourke went to the telephone and dialed a number. He asked for the City Desk when he got an answer, then asked casually, "Got anything yet on a car that went over the County Causeway into the drink about half an hour ago? This is Tim Rourke."

He listened, nodding his head without much interest until he jerked to attention suddenly.

"Are you sure about that?" He listened again, then said tensely, "This may be an important story, Ed. Put every man you can rust out into checking that story and trying to get hold of the fellow. I'm at this telephone number." He read Lucy's number out loud. "Call me here the moment you get a single thing on it."

He hung up slowly, turned to Lucy and said, "I'll be back."

"Maybe it didn't go off soon enough. I pulled the knob and threw it in." She shuddered at the thought.

Lucy went back to her room and looked at the clock. It was 10:15.

She looked at the door. It was closed.
